Be a National Park Ranger this Summer!

Apply for the Teacher-Ranger-Teacher Program
Summer 2008

Application Deadline is February 25, 2008

Put on a Park Ranger uniform, receive training, and work with the National Park Service at Petrified Forest National Park for eight weeks between June 9 and August 1, 2008; then, bring your experience back to the classroom to share with your students.

Teachers receive a $60/day stipend, a uniform, and housing at the park (if needed); housing may be in shared quarters with other seasonal park staff.

The Teacher-Ranger will have the opportunity to work on various projects and activities including, but not limited to, conducting interpretive programs, developing curriculum-based activities for students, and working behind the information desk at the Visitor Center, Rainbow Forest Museum, and Painted Desert Inn National Historic Landmark.

The intent of the Teacher-Ranger-Teacher program is to provide a well-rounded experience for a teacher in national parks as a park ranger. From this experience the teacher will develop National Park Service materials to be shared with students in the classroom and other educators in the school district. The program will focus on teachers from schools that have diverse student populations.
